

A series of special reports on a CIAM's innovative investment - ZhongAoHuiCheng Technology Ltd. by the China Reform Daily

In April, China Reform Daily reported for a series of full page coverage on ZhongAoHuiCheng Technology Co., Ltd. (“ZAHC”), which is one of our investments, following the National People’s Congress of the PRC which held recently. The reports revealed and appreciate the determination and appreciate the difficulties encountered by ZAHC to get relevant medical product approval under current country system and mentality. For more details, please refer to the news which we posted under the same Chinese version.

ZAHC is an innovative high-tech company listed on the NEEQ Board of China with stock code 833351. The Company focus on research and development, application and commercialization of high-end material. It has innovated a global leading GLC (Graphite Like Coating) technology that can be widely applied in biomedical, precision machining, high-end automobile manufacturing, etc., to significantly improve materials’ tear and wearing rate, increase hardness with various functional features. Its innovative GLC artificial joint product is deemed as a subversive product in the world and is now being under CFDA’s approval process.